The last Infamy of the Chivalry

It will be remembered that the last infamy of the chivalry was the starvation system practiced upon our prisoners in Rebel Confederate prisons for the avowed purpose of procuring from the suffering prisoners testimony favorable to Jeff Davis and his fellow conspirators in treason. This testimony was to be used in the trial of Davis for treason. This matter was unintelligible to us at the time, but now it turns out that he was arraigned before the bar of his brutal and inhuman treatment to the prisoners while they were held in confinement and because of their misappropriation by him of the provisions and clothing that were sent by the people of the North to relieve the wants of our suffering soldiers. His manner of conducting the exchange may be seen by the following extract from a letter written by him to Gen. Winder in March 1864:

"The arrangement I have made for exchanging prisoners works largely in our favor. We get rid of a set of miserable wretches and receive some of the best material I ever saw."

This letter reveals nothing new. It is merely confirmatory of that inhumanity which the rebels have been charged with, and which they have been proven guilty of in innumerable instances throughout the whole war. The country has known for two years, that these heartless emissaries of the barbarities of the most vile ages have been practicing these horrible cruelties upon our captive soldiers, yet with an appearance of injured innocence, the chivalry have denied the perpetration of these wanton atrocities. At last when the correspondence of these rebel officers with each other is brought to light, we find an acknowledgment therein which confirms all the charges heretofore made by our Government against the rebel officials, for their barbarities toward our men. Such conduct is fully in keeping with the rebel charantor. It is just what might have been expected from those who were trained under that system which extinguishes all humanity, and which causes the perpetration of cruelties, from which all, save those who are hearts are indurated by a long association with barbarism, must recoil.

The Government now has conclusive proof that the greater part of the supplies that were sent to relieve the sufferings of our prisoners, were stolen by the infamous Ould and parcelled out to the members of the pseudo government at Richmond. Part of these goods have been found since the capture of the city and identified. Col. Farnsworth, of Connecticut, who was confined in the Libby during a portion of the period while this thieving was going on, makes the following statement under oath:

"We began to receive boxes in October 1864. These came in good order, were inspected in our presence, and delivered to us entire. They came regularly, and were delivered in good order up to about the 1st of January, after this time I was were sent regularly from the North, and were received by Colonel Ould, Commissioner of Exchange, but they were not issued to us. They were stored in a building within sight of the prison, and at the time of my leaving, three thousand had been received there and not delivered to us. What was the cause of this non delivery of boxes we were never informed. They kept up a semblance of delivery, however, by the issue of five or six a week, they receiving from the North about three hundred a week. The contents of these boxes were, undoubtedly, appropriated to the private use of the officials in and about Richmond. Here is simply one instance. Lieutenant Maginnis, of the Eighteenth Regiment, Connecticut, since killed in battle, recognized a suit of citizen's clothes which had been sent to him from the North, on the person of one of the prison officials, and recognized him of the theft and showed his name on the watch pocket of the pants. Such cases were numerous."

No circumstance of infamy is wanting to aid in showing the real character of the rebellious chivalry. The evidence is complete. Out of their own mouths they are condemned of having caused the death by starvation of sixty thousand of our soldiers. Ould, the chief agent in this scheme of cruelty is under arrest, and no doubt will soon pay the penalty of his crime with his miserable life.

THE FIRE AT THE DALLES.—The Mountaineer of yesterday contains a further account of the fire at the Dalles. There is no doubt but that the conflagration was the work of an incendiary. The fire broke out in an unoccupied house in the rear of a barber shop, and was quickly communicated to the adjoining buildings. The stone structures resisted its progress. The losses are quite serious but on the whole the people of the town ought to be well satisfied in that it was no worse. The whole town was in danger, and but for fortunate circumstances, would have been reduced to ashes. The following are the estimated losses of the sufferers by the fire:

Humason, Stebking & Co., $20,000; O. Humason, (building, library &c.) $8,500; G. H. Burwell, 8,000; Saddlery Shop, 2,500; P. Reddie, 500; Thacher & Co., 2,000; Lager Beer Saloon, 1,000; Barber Shop, 500; Z. F. Moody, 2,000; W. Lord, 2,000. Total, $48,200.

We believe the above as the most to be a fair estimate of the loss incurred. The law office of Humason & Odell was destroyed but the books of the firm were saved. The building was the property of O. Humason, and is included in the table given above.

ONLY A SEEMING SCOTCH VIEW.—The Copperhead papers are quoting approvingly the sentiments of Gerrit Smith Greeley and others who oppose the capital punishment of Jeff. Davis and his fellow workers in treason. There is a marked parent coincidence of opinion. The motives of the two classes of men are altogether variant. The Copperheads do not want these rebels punished, for the reason that they have a friendly sympathy for them while Greeley and others of like opinion are opposed to capital punishment and would treat them with leniency on that account. The Copperheads say that it would be magnanimous to forgive the defeated rebels. Greeley does not call it magnanimity, but opposes their execution because he insists that example of this kind are productive of evil rather than of good.

A SELF-EXILED TIMON.—Full of iron against the country which could not appreciate his genius, Harsatyle Patriotism Brinah Brownbumtorne flies back upon the city of San Francisco and its surrounding him away to Mexico—a land whose style of liberty is more consonant with his opinions than that which here prevails. Like Timon when he left ungrateful Athens, Beriah no doubt opened the flood gates of wrathful impression and poured out all his indignant soul in fitful bursts of contumelious reproach upon the country he was leaving behind him. His patriotism which, before rested under suspicion, is now and settled for by his departure he has done his country the greatest service he could possibly have rendered it.

Twenty three States have ratified the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery. After its ratification by Oregon and California for one more State will be required to give the number necessary to make the amendment a part of our fundamental law. The work goes on and will soon be done.

DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

DATES TO MAY 29.

Protection of Freedmen on Rebel Plantations.

NEW YORK, May 29.—General Howard, Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau has issued a circular stating that disloyal proprietors of plantations in the South now being cultivated by freedmen will not be allowed to dispossess the latter while they are in some States necessary to the cultivation of the soil, till after the next crop is secured for the benefit of the laborers.

The Herald and dispatches give the following as the most important testimony before Saunders and Thompson not already published. [illegible] That Jefferson Davis, in the last States and the Confederate Cabinet, [illegible] the White House.

Release of Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—It is stated that all persons sentenced by military tribunals at the time of closing the war, the sentences not executed, and the prisoners discharged. The Adjutant General will publish immediately the necessary instructions to carry this order into effect. By order of the President.

(Signed) STANTON.

From Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS Times has Brazos, Texas, dispatches of May 12th, which says: The Liberal forces occupied Matamoras seven thousand strong, and Negrete after occupying the place [illegible] of six hundred thousand dollars in specie. In the fight at Saltillo, the Imperial General Noriega, Tejeda, and Leon were wounded and about fifty thousand dollars in specie and one hundred prisoners.

While Negrette was attacking Matamoras on the 20th of April the rebels were slaughter forts [illegible] the left bank of the Rio Grande and opened [illegible] to prevent his troops crossing the river [illegible].

The arrangement I have made for exchanging prisoners works largely in our favor. We get rid of a set of miserable wretches and receive some of the best material I ever saw.

Sherman to Command the Division of the Mississippi.

NEW YORK, May 28th.—The Herald's Washington dispatch says Gen. Sherman's report will be published next week. By order of the War Department Sherman will retain command of the Military division of the Mississippi comprising Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Head quarters to be at Cincinnati. Gen. Logan has refused a brigadeership in the regular army, and will retire to private life.

Terrible Explosion at Mobile.

CHICAGO, May 29.—A New Orleans telegram says: The main ordnance department, with a magazine in the immediate vicinity of Mobile exploded on the 24th. More than two hundred persons are known to have been killed. Eight squares of buildings were demolished. The loss is estimated at eight millions. The cause of the explosion is not known.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Another New Orleans telegram says of the explosion at Mobile. It occurred on the evening of May 24th. The number killed is three hundred, and many wounded were buried in the ruins. About eight thousand bales of cotton were destroyed. The steamers Colonel Lee and Kate Dale, with all on board, were lost. A great portion of the business quarter of the city is badly damaged. Gen. Granger rendered prompt relief to the sufferers. The ordnance stores were a portion of the munitions of war surrendered by Dick Taylor, and were in course of removal when the explosion occurred. The entire city is more or less injured.

Things in the South.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The Herald's Mongeon city correspondent says business is being resumed there. Good order prevails, and the number of rations issued daily to the white population is 2,000. The colored population have thousands. Many whites receiving rations are of most respectable families. General Gracken and command had reached Troy, where he was informed of the surrender of Johnston. He learned at the same time of the assassination of the President, and moved to Gravala, Ala. where he could obtain better subsistence. After remaining there four days, he was informed of the capitulation of Johnston and proceeded at once to Montgomery. The people throughout the country were exceedingly anxious for peace, acknowledging boldly, that they were whipped, and willing to obey the old government, minus slavery.

The country is full of returned soldiers incensed against the rich and loading with curses those who forced them into the rebel armies, leaving their families to suffer in their absence.

Major Price's expedition consisting of a mere handful of men, made a circuit through Cloverville and other places and destroyed much rebel property. They had things all their own way, helping themselves to horses freely and being handsomely entertained by the ladies whom they treated with much gallantry.

Fight in Texas.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The following particulars of the fight at Bagdahlo, Texas, the last battle of the rebellion have been reported:

The National forces under Colonel Barrett, only three hundred strong, started out on a foraging expedition and surprised a rebel camp at Palmetto. In the commencement the movement was very successful, capturing the camp and many other valuable supplies. They continued to push forward driving the rebels before them, till they found themselves confronted by about one thousand rebels and were obliged to retreat. On their return to Brazos society then were missing, most of whom subsequently arrived having been captured but succeeded in making their escape.

The New Amnesty Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Proclamation of the President.

WHEREAS, The President of the United States on the 8th day of December, 1863, and on the 26th day of March, 1864, did, with the object to suppress the existing rebellion, and to induce all persons to return to their loyalty and restore the authority of the United States, issue proclamations offering amnesty and pardon to certain persons who had directly or by implication, participated in said rebellion, and, whereas, many persons who had [illegible] and proclamation, wanted or neglected to take the benefits offered thereby, and whereas many persons who have been duly deprived of all claim to amnesty and pardon thereby, or by reason of their participation in said rebellion have since the issue of said proclamations, applied to the Government of the United States for the benefits and privileges of said proclamation, and whereas it appears that the full restoration of all rights of property, except as to slaves, and except in cases where legal proceedings under the laws of the United States, during the confiscation of the property of persons engaged in the rebellion have been commenced, but not concluded, is the best way to suppress the rebellion, and to restore permanent peace, order and freedom, to establish Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do proclaim and declare that I hereby grant to all persons who have directly or indirectly participated in the existing rebellion, except as hereinafter excepted, amnesty and pardon with the restoration of all their rights of property, except as to slaves, and except in cases where legal proceedings under the laws of the United States, during the confiscation of the property of said persons engaged in the rebellion have been commenced, but not concluded, to which end [illegible] Proclamation of the 8th day of December, 1863, and of the 26th day of March, 1864, with the object to suppress the existing rebellion, and to induce all persons to return to their loyalty and restore the authority of the United States, issue proclamations offering amnesty and pardon to certain persons who had directly or by implication, participated in said rebellion, and, whereas, many persons who had [illegible] and proclamation, wanted or neglected to take the benefits offered thereby, and whereas many persons who have been duly deprived of all claim to amnesty and pardon thereby, or by reason of their participation in said rebellion have since the issue of said proclamations, applied to the Government of the United States for the benefits and privileges of said proclamation, and whereas it appears that the full restoration of all rights of property, except as to slaves, and except in cases where legal proceedings under the laws of the United States, during the confiscation of the property of persons engaged in the rebellion have been commenced, but not concluded, is the best way to suppress the rebellion, and to restore permanent peace, order and freedom, to establish Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do proclaim and declare that I hereby grant to all persons who have directly or indirectly participated in the existing rebellion, except as hereinafter excepted, amnesty and pardon with the restoration of all their

The Treasury and the Rebel Bonds.—The [illegible] Bonds, and the new regime of Montana adjusted [illegible] by increasing in importance, and the [illegible] gradually taking a higher position in the [illegible] duty is to supply the world with [illegible] the growth of the country and the resources [illegible] been done. On the collateral expansion of the [illegible] and its wealth is well known to be brilliant and [illegible] unequaled. In looking at the balance of this [illegible] the Bonds in the natural order of [illegible] the fact as to routes is in favor of the Columbia. The miners are not far removed from the great [illegible] of trade on its waters, and in many instances [illegible] in the basins of the same. Mountains have existing [illegible] and their interests are identified with the same [illegible] distances from Lewiston to the various [illegible] towns are given below, as taken by Mr. A. Hell Gate to Virginia City, the distance is given at [illegible] making the total distance of 550 miles from [illegible] to Virginia City by the Mullan road. The distance by two other routes is as Lewiston to Virginia City [illegible] reported; that by way of the Dalles and Fort Hall is given at 870 miles; that by the Elk City trail at [illegible] but possibly the distance would be found by [illegible] the latter on the score of the route, the former having been [illegible] by the Elk City trail Hudgick is [illegible] 225 miles distant from Lewiston. By the Dalles trail it is [illegible] to Fort Owyhee from Lewiston and [illegible] miles to Deer Lodge. From Salt Lake by Fort Hall to City, the distance is a good wagon road of [illegible]. The distances from Walla Walla to the Coeur d'Alene mines by Mullan's road, is 200 miles; to Hell Gate by the same route [illegible].

Pine Pavement.—The San Francisco Bulletin of the 20th, says efforts are making to induce the Board of Supervisors to adopt the Nicholson Pavement [illegible] in future of the city. Wherever it has been laid down it has given the utmost satisfaction, and we hope the City Fathers will make use of that wisdom they are partially supposed to possess, and adopt this pavement for [illegible] avenues, and all nuisances should be placed [illegible] of kind they may be, and whether [illegible] to individuals, or corporations. [illegible] having sent a corps of engineers to examine [illegible] to relay with it the streets where the [illegible] Pavement has before been used. It is [illegible] Pavement, and if for no other reason, that it has received the enthusiastic and [illegible] of every city where it has been used. [illegible] "new invention," but an "experiment" [illegible] the test of years of trouble in the principal [illegible] the West, and every point claimed in its favor [illegible] demonstrated clearly enough.

Dodge Entertainment.—The admirers of [illegible] will be pleased to learn that arrangements [illegible] secured for a series of brilliant entertainments [illegible] given in our city, the initiatory performance of [illegible] at No. 2's Engine House to-night. Persons who have attended the Dodge's [illegible] Francisco, say they are nowhere by the [illegible] that have occurred in the performances [illegible] regretting that we shall be unable to attend [illegible] all the principal events of the evening shall [illegible] It will be impossible to obtain the seats [illegible] to follow this announcement.

Very Important Gold Discovery.—We were favored with the intelligence of another important discovery of a gold region at the head of [illegible] lake of the Columbia, intimated in the [illegible] which will be given [illegible] Monday. Previous to [illegible] and Bye drifters to the point had been [illegible] the prospectors, and our informant [illegible] appears as perfectly credible that we [illegible] that that region has been found and [illegible] will immediately become noted
